Bokyung Byun

South Korea

Guitar Performance

Korean guitarist, Bokyung Byun, is an active solo and chamber musician who has most recently resided in New York City. She is one of the leading young guitarists of this generation and has been hailed as a guitarist who "performs with fleet-fingered, delicate precision, and expressiveness (Julia Crowe)."

Born in 1994, in Seoul, Korea, Bokyung began playing guitar at six. At the age of eleven, she had her first full-length solo recital in Gwangju, Korea. In the following years, she went on numerous concert tours in Korea, receiving enthusiastic response from her Korean audiences. Bokyung's YouTube video of Recuerdos de la alhambra had a remarkable five million views. By her teen years, she had won competitions held by the Korea Guitar Association, the Embassy of Spain, and the Music Association of Korea. She launched her career as an internationally recognized young artist after winning the Guitar Foundation of America International Youth Competition in 2007. More recent competition wins include the Philadelphia International Competition, Tuesday Morning Music Club Classical Guitar Competition, and Montreal International Classical Guitar Competition.

Bokyung moved to the United States in 2010 to study with William Kanengiser of the Los Angeles Guitar Quartet and a member of the faculty of the USC Thornton School of Music, and in 2011, at the age of sixteen, she moved to New York City to attend The Juilliard School to study with Sharon Isbin. Being passionate about arts education, Bokyung was selected as a teaching fellow for The Juilliard School's prestigious Music Advancement Program and Morse Teaching Artist Fellowships for four consecutive years.

Ana Carolina Estarita

Colombia

Animation and Digital Arts

Ana Carolina Estarita is a visual artist with an audiovisual emphasis whose work explores temporary phenomena and its effects on organic matter, relating concepts of the visual arts and theoretical frameworks to physics and literature. Born in Barranquilla, she earned her undergraduate degree in the Pontificia Universidad Javeriana in Bogotá, where she started working in research. Her experimentation with video, animation, and installations lead her to use the visual arts and its practices as a thinking process that helped answer the questions she had from her theoretical research. Her work explores poetry, the passage of time, and memory through the use of mixed media and physical space.

Since Ana's graduation in 2012, she has deepened and at the same time broadened her research scope, through different creations, research grants, and artistic residency awards. She worked in a think tank which focused on exploring the relationship between art and life, the role of power in relationships, social movements, resistances, and memory through art. Her work plays with making different notions of time clearly evident to the naked eye, and turning time itself into malleable plastic matter susceptible to being transformed—a process that often takes place in experimental animation or video in which time is the raw material.

As an International Artist Fellow, she will pursue a Master of Fine Arts degree in the John C. Hench Division of Animation and Digital Arts at USC's School of Cinematic Arts.

Lea Marina Lanoue Timm

Canada

Fine Art

Lea has performed in a number of theatrical works including: the role of Laura Jane in Don Nigro directed by Liz Valdez, the role of Helene Shandy in Mavericks and the Monokins: Playball by director Roxane Loumede, the role of “Myself” in director Gabe Meacher’s Me, You, Our(self), and director Caroline Gendron’s Je m’aime moi non plus.

In addition to her theatre work, Lea has had roles in several films including Playas Embrujadas by director Stephanie Burbano, La Guerre Froide by Etienne Dufresne, and Gallix by Alex Pouliot. She is fluent in French, Spanish, and English, practiced in ballroom and Bolivian folk dance, and has experience with stage combat.

Lea completed her Bachelor of Fine Arts with a specialization in Theatre Performance at Concordia University in Montreal, and has extensive training in theatrical arts. During her time in Montreal and abroad she spent time with several workshops and studios including the Omnibus Théâtre Corporel, Central Saint Martins in Central London, scene and improv work with the University of Montreal, private workshops with actor-director Jean-Pierre Bergeron and theatre contemporary Danielle Fichaud, and studies at Montreal’s Studio 303.

From her time depicting victims and survivors on the stage, Lea has expressed a desire to take her experiences and apply them to help refugees from the Congo at the camp where her father currently works in Burundi. She also hopes to construct a bridge between the Anglophone and Francophone communities of Montreal through bilingual theatre performances. Lea is enthused to have the opportunity to work with talented performers and practitioners in the greater Los Angeles area as she pursues her Masters of Fine Arts in Acting at the University of Southern California.

Marton Robinson

Costa Rica

Fine Art

Born and raised in San José, Costa Rica, artist Marton Robinson has an interdisciplinary background informed by his studies in both Physical Education and in Art and Visual Communication. His prior studies have included completing an MA in Integral Health and Human Movement at the National University of Costa Rica. The result is a multi-media art practice, which investigates modes of communication and translation – of history, culture, and identity – that challenge popular culture’s representations and assumptions. Robinson’s work exposes the nuances present in the Afro-Latino experience that deepen the critical discourse of works in the contemporary African Diaspora.

Marton has participated in solo and group exhibitions in and out of Costa Rica in spaces such as: The Getty Center, Los Angeles, California; Museo de Arte y Diseño Contemporáneo (MADC), San José, Costa Rica; Fundación Ars TEOR/ética, San José, Costa Rica; Eastside International, Los Angeles, California; X Bienal Centroamericana, Costa Rica; The Claremont Graduate University, Los Angeles, California; and others. He received an Honorable Mention in video and new digital media creation at the Eighth Edition of Inquieta Imagen (ii_2015), from the Museo de Arte y Diseño Contemporáneo, and also participated as an artist in residence at Alter Academia 2016 at TEOR/ética.

As an International Artist Fellow, he is pursuing a Master of Fine Arts degree in the Roski School.

Dolnapha (Yaya) Veerasilpa

Thailand

Interactive Media and Game Design

Yaya Veerasilpa is a story teller who works across different platforms ranging from fine art, digital art, film, animation, and gameplay. Her work centers on philosophy, human beings, and fantasy.

Born in Bangkok, Thailand, Yaya was raised in a diverse community while attending the International School in Thailand. Her work celebrates the differences between cultures and beliefs. Her paintings have been exhibited in several places in Bangkok, including the IB Art Exhibition at the New International School of Thailand, Character Design competition at King Mongkut's University of Technology Thonburi, and the Young Artist of Thailand competition. These experiences have contributed to her wide view of storytelling and media across the modern world.

In order to explore other art mediums, Yaya left Bangkok to study cinematography and transmedia at the Royal Holloway University of London where she graduated with a bachelor's degree. During this time, she was a second assistant director and second director of photography on several international television commercial shoots, including Indonesia's Eclairs, Brands, and a number of L'OREAL series. She recently received a first place award for an anti-corruption TVC from the Minister of Defense of Thailand. Her primary goal is to use these different art mediums to create an impactful story that does not only reflect upon society itself but improves it in the long term.

As one of the USC International Artist Fellows, Yaya is pursuing her Master of Fine Arts degree in the USC School of Cinematic Arts' Interactive Media and Game Design program.
